The programme in short

The Matra Rule of Law Training Programme is designed to strengthen institutional capacity in the field of rule of law within government organisations in Albania, Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Georgia, Kosovo, Moldova, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, Türkiye, and Ukraine. We offer seven training programs each year, providing participants with insights into best practices across a wide range of rule of law topics.

Through interactive sessions that blend theory with practical skills, as well as study visits, our programme equips policy advisors, members of the judiciary and other civil servants working in the government and justice sectors with the knowledge and skills needed to drive reforms within their respective countries.

In addition, by taking part in the training programme, participants become part of a large international network of alumni, lecturers and public institutions in the Netherlands and in the target countries. This network serves as a platform for learning, exchange and collaboration.

The Matra Rule of Law Training Programme is designed and delivered by the Netherlands Helsinki Committee, Leiden Law School, and The Hague Academy for Local Governance. It is financed by the Netherlands Enterprise Agency on behalf of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs of the Netherlands.

Target audience

The training on Integrity of Civil Servants is intended for English-speaking (mid to senior) civil servants and policy makers in public institutions from different levels of government (national, regional, local) such as Ministries, local governments and anti-corruption agencies charged with the development and implementation of integrity plans and policies for civil servants in their respective countries.

Participants will be expected to offer an active contribution to the learning process and be in a position to implement the newly gained knowledge and insights in their respective organisation. The maximum number of participants per training is 30. The selection process will ensure gender balance and adequate representation of the countries concerned.

Eligible countries: Albania, Armenia, Bosnia and Herzegovina, Georgia, Kosovo, Moldova, Montenegro, North Macedonia, Serbia, Türkiye and Ukraine

Background

Public integrity is a core value of the European vision of good governance. It is essential for a well-functioning and transparent government and for economic growth. This training aims to impart knowledge and skills to officials from the participating countries to promote integrity within the government.

Within this training, we address three pillars of public integrity as defined by the Organisation for Economic Co-operation and Development (OECD): system, culture, and accountability. These pillars respectively include policy and responsibility, training and leadership and enforcement, and risk management and supervision. Attention is given to international and European standards, as well as practical examples from the Netherlands. We discuss how policies are designed, implemented, and enforced. The training also provides insight into the roles and responsibilities of various actors in promoting the integrity of public officials.

Objectives

The training programme aims to provide participants with an overview of mechanisms and policies that they can use within their area of expertise and how these can be set in motion and successfully implemented. The focus is on practical implementation. Presentations on the Dutch approach encourage the participants to reflect on the situation in their own country, to identify areas for reform and additionally nurture exchange on practices in each other's countries. Ultimately, knowledge and skills of participants are improved and networks for the exchange of best practices created.

Approach and structure

By being demand-driven in nature and by stimulating active participation, the training programme strives to achieve lasting results. When participants complete the training, they are sufficiently equipped to implement the newly gained knowledge and insights in their respective organisations. The online training programme offers a careful balance between theory and practice. The in-person part of the programme allows for further deepening of skills and knowledge and for networking. The in-person programme enables participants to learn from and to become acquainted with leading (Dutch and international) academics and professionals. Furthermore, it enables discussion between Dutch and EU practitioners and institutions in this field. Exchanging and comparing experiences is a key aspect of the programme.

Upon successful completion of the programme – which includes attendance to all components of the programme – participants will receive a certificate.

Admission requirements

The selection of participants will largely be based on:

- The participant should currently be a (mid to senior-level) civil servant;
- The participant should clearly demonstrate their professional interest in this training and the uses they would make of the insights gained from the training;
- The participant should have a good command of spoken and written English;
- The participant should be highly motivated;
- The participant should be comfortable sharing their knowledge with fellow participants (contributing during the live sessions and regular knowledge sharing in the digital learning environment is required);
- Participants should submit a signed employer's statement granting permission to participate in the training programme.

Required time commitment

The participant should be able to dedicate sufficient time to the programme. For the 2-week online programme, 6-8 hours per week are required. For the 2-week in-person programme in the Netherlands, 8 hours per day are required. Furthermore, the participant should be available for several follow-up activities as described in this brochure.

How to apply

Please read the admission requirements carefully. Candidates who meet all the requirements may proceed to complete the application form, which is available at <https://www.nhc.nl/matrarolt/>.

Application forms need to be submitted in full to be eligible for selection. Applicants are required to upload a signed employer's statement granting permission to participate in the programme. Admission will be on merit and competitive basis.

Successfully uploaded applications will receive an automatic e-mail confirmation.
